Changes Found Everywhere

Informal Question Is Literal

What's New?

"What's New?" is not only an inquiry into someone's life, but a question to be taken literally on the campus of North Central.

One may not think about school much over the months of summer break, but once back on campus, many find themselves looking for changes. North Central offered many changes throughout the year.

Although freshmen did not notice the difference, returning students had to adjust to the new "traditional" class schedule. One was used to having no classes on Wednesday, but the new schedule made that obsolete. However, the lucky few could select classes in such a way that they could have two or three days free. "I like it for the mere fact we have more than one day off. Last year, I didn't do anything on Wednesday. This schedule makes you do your homework," commented Nicole Davis, sophomore.

Everyone was curious as to what the new food service would bring to the tastebuds, and found only minor alterations. The food plans stayed the same, but price in the cage went up. One aspect of PFM (Professional Food Management) was that they were open to student suggestions and comments regarding service and menu. Senior Jim Godo commented on the new service, "The food service has been better this year, but there is always room for improvement."

Living in the residence halls proved to be a new experience for not only the freshmen, but upperclassmen as well. Extensive remodeling was done over interim in almost every residence hall. Such improvements included remodeling of Student Village and Rall lounges, fluorescent lights in Geiger and Kimmel, and urinals and heaters in Seybert bathrooms. Peep holes were installed in each hall. Kimmel resident, junior Wendy Wade said, "The lights make it easier to study, but it is impossible to sleep if they are on."

In accordance with ADA (American Disabilities Act) buildings were made more accessible to the handicapped. The restrooms in Old Main, Larrance Academic Center and White Activities Center were remodeled to allow easier access. Larrance and White had elevators installed and the Student Service Center and Sunshine House installed handicapped lifts.

But renovations were not exclusive to buildings. Plenty of new faces could be found on campus as well. Rall, Seybert, and Geiger all acquired new hall directors; Kim Roddick, Ben Bramwell,and Peggy Schweiger. Kimmel was under direction by a student hall director, Kevin Harrington. But even those newcomers had a new boss. Marco Masini became the Director of Resident Life. Other new faces included Julie Kabat, Director of Campus Safety, and Jackie Thomas, Director of Multi-Cultural Affairs.

The year started off with many changes and more were to come throughout the year; in sports, organizations and student life. North Central College may never experience another year quite like this one, but from here on, people will ask "WHAT'S NEW" and mean it.

What's Going On?

When not in class or writing a paper, students like to (or need to), relax and have some fun. Activities sponsored by various organizations on campus made that a little bit easier for students to do.

CUAB sponsored Homecoming Week and dance, the winter dance, and the spring formal. For homecoming, the Jesse White Tumblers performed at the pep assembly after President Wilde dedicated the new floor in Merner Fieldhouse. The winter dance was almost postponed due to a blackout that affected most of the area. Luckily, the Radisson Inn still had power. The spring formal went on with no major problems other than couples getting ready to go.

RHA sponsored the second annual Miss NCC Pageant in which the guys dressed in formal gowns and performed a hidden talent.

Seager Hall used to provide "How Real Men" programs for entertainment once a term, but they were banned. The administration felt that the programs posed a health risk to the students.

But however students managed to relax, everyone looked forward to graduation and honors convocation as they signaled the end of the year.

From the beginning of the year in September to the end of June, student's always asked, "WHAT'S GOING ON?"

Homecoming Week Provides Fun

Catch The Spirit

Lights. Camera. Action! Those words brought Homecoming Week to a start. The opportunity to show hidden talents became easier as NCC students headed toward the fieldhouse to make their own personalized, CUAB sponsored, fun flicks. Students could choose from a variety of costumes and lip sync to one of their favorite tunes. Each group was given a complimentary copy of their video.

The next event, Olympic Day, was held on Wednesday night in the fieldhouse. Ten teams participated in wild and wacky games. The team with the most points overall was the winner. Events included a relay race and spoon sewing.

Thursday night saw a street dance in between Seager and Rall Halls. There students could socialize and dance up an appetite that could be filled by CUAB provided sub sandwiches.

The pep rally on Friday night was a success. To start it off, President Wilde and alumni dedicated the new field house floor. From there, the cheerleaders, poms, and BASIS did original dance routines. Highlighting the night were the Jessie White Tumblers and the presentation of the Homecoming Court.

The football game on Saturday against Millikin University proved to be an exciting game. Despite their efforts however, the cards lost 21-35. Halftime entertainment was provided by the pep band, cheerleaders, and poms. That night saw the dance held at the Wyndham Hamilton Hotel in Itasca. It was highlighted by the coronation of King and Queen, Steve Becker and Cathe Clarida.

What's Your Opinion?

"The homecoming dance was great. I danced all night!"
-Marissa Morrison (96)

"I really liked the Jessie White Tumblers."
-Steve Krohn (96)

"If you're planning on running a marathon the day after the dance, don't do it."
-Brian Pearson (96)

"The hallway that had the food was actually bigger than the dance floor."
-Josh Riek (93)

"They could of handled the alcohol situation a little more intelligently. I thought it would have been better to have everyone in the same room."
-Kerri Benninger (93)

"The Naperville area has enough places to hold a dance. I cannot understand driving forty minutes."
-Chris Tointon (95)

What's Your Opinion?

"When the lights went back on, I couldn't believe who I was dancing with."
-Duane Schantz (95)

"I am glad that the hotel at least had electricity."
-Amy Zander (93)

"It was better than homecoming because there was more room to dance. It was not as crowded."
-Jessica Jones (96)

"I had a lot of fun. I got to socialize with people who I would not see at normal social activities."
-Terry Companik (95)

"The friends were there, the music was great, and the food good. But I was damn glad when it was all over!"

Despite Storm & Blackout

Winter Meltdown

The '93 winter dance was different than any ever before. The entire week before the dance, the electricity had been surging on and off in the residence halls. Everyone thought that power had been restored to campus on Friday, but early in the afternoon, as people were trying to finalize plans for the evening, two generators blew leaving campus without power for nine hours. This time it was out all over Naperville. Girls began to panic trying to find places with enough light in order to beautify themselves for the evening and guys had to find restaurants in the area so they could take their dates out to dinner. Luckily, the Radisson Inn in Lisle, where the Winter Meltdown Dance '93 was held, kept power all night.

Considering how the evening began, it turned out to be a success. There was plenty of food for all and enough water to quench the thirst of the dancers who only quit when the music did. People felt that there was a great variety of music to please everyone. Many of the students also took advantage of the shuttle busses running back and forth between North Central and the dance all evening.

According to Danielle Baadte and Nikki Zimmerman, the co-chairs of the committee, the dance was a complete success. Feelings of the students that attended were similar. Dave Eahardt, sophomore, felt that "this was one of the best dances he has been to during his past year and a half at North Central."

What's Your Opinion?

"The Spring Formal lived up to its reputation of being the capstone dance of the year. I think this is because the practice of suits, tuxes, and dresses generally encourages only those couples who really want to be there to attend."
-Kevin Harrington (93)

"At least it was better than High School. It was more formal and I liked it."
-Darren Dyken (96)

"They should have had normal food. It was all right tasting, but maybe they could have given us a choice-or offer something they know everyone will like."
-Stephanie Wilkins (96)

"The dinner and the dance were great. I enjoyed the dancing part the most. The D.J. played a wide variety of music. It was over-all an enjoyable evening, a good way to kick back and relax in a formal setting with your peers."
-Dave Martensen (94)

Less Formal More Fun Theme

Dinner, Dancing Enjoyable

In the past, Spring Formal has always had some sort of romantic or exquisite theme. This year, CUAB decided to make it a more all encompassing type of theme. It was called the Spring-Fling-Wing-Ding. Sometimes the words got mixed around, but all in all, it made for a fun theme to work with.

The week of the dance, CUAB sponsored various fun activities. These included a street dance, which was unfortunately rained out, a moonwalker, human bowling, and a velcro wall.

May 31st was the day that about 150 students got dressed up and headed out on the town for a night of food and fun. The formal event was held at Country Lakes Country Club in Naperville. People came in all different types of attire. The dress ranged from sport coats and tuxes to short party dresses and long sequined ones. No matter what they wore, they enjoyed themselves all night from dinner to dancing. Dinner, not usually a part of the ticket deal, consisted of chicken, baked potato, and dessert.

Senior Mike Livingston summed it up by saying, "My date (Julie Strassburger) and I danced so much and had such a good time that we were floored-literally." This was witnessed by anyone who stayed long enough to see Strassburger lying on the floor to rest between dances. Sophomore Duane Schantz said, "All in all, it was a definite two thumbs up."

Warm Temps, Big Crowd, Long Speeches

Commencement 1993

The 80 plus temperature did not keep the graduates and their families away from Kroehler Field on June 12th. During the two and a half hour ceremony, water was made available to the graduates and to those in the stands.

President Wilde welcomed everyone and stated, "It's (graduation) is a celebration." He then introduced Jim Godo and Julie Klco stated, "few of us made it on our own," and then addressed the challenge of being a non-traditional student. "We stretched ourselves and our families to great limits."

The guest speaker was Stephanie Pace Marshall, executive director of Illinois Mathematics and Science Academy. Quoting Robert Frost's "The Road Not Taken," she challenged everyone in attendance to consider the less traveled road and to embark on a new journey. The candidates were then presented to President Wilde and eventually received their diplomas.

However, the graduates were not the only ones honored. Several individuals received special recognition. John Cerovski, Bayard Lyon, and James Taylor were given Faculty Emeriti status. Honorary degrees were given to Richard Eastman (Doctor of Humane Letters), and Stephanie Pace Marshall (Doctor of Sciences). The Gale D. Swing Award was given to Dr. David Homer. Andrew Freiheit received the Mark A. Reid Leadership Award. Kay Nelson received the Harold and Eva White "First Citizen of the College" Award.

What's On The Agenda?

Each organization serves a purpose on campus. Whether the goal is to put out a good publication, make others aware of what's going on, or provide career or spiritual support, each serves as a way for students to work with others. Throughout the year, many of the clubs had major successes.

RHA raised enough money through "Jail and Bail" to send a group of members to the conference at Augustana. Upon returning, they sponsored Hall Olympics. Rall Hall won.

Spectrum became computerized, sort of. A new computer and program was purchased, but due to technical problems, the book was completed by hand.

WONC went on the air 24 hours for the first time in a number of years. They were forced to do so due to repeated transmitter problems.

MSA sponsored a Halloween Masquarade Ball and a play, "A Star Ain't Nothin But A Hole In Heaven," directed by sophomore Tamara Barber.

Pre-Health had a blood drive and in conjunction with the theatre department, held a biological house of oddities at Halloween.

NCC Green had a variety of guest lecturers and nature expeditions. For Earth Day in April, they held olympics. Events included a ballon toss and tug-of-war.

Not all clubs are listed, but each worked hard to plan their activities. And at any meeting, there was always the question, "WHAT'S ON THE AGENDA?"

Active Participation From Boards

Electing Leaders, Changes

"I wanted this year's student executive board to be a more activist board. To accomplish things instead of just talking about them," said SA president Shawn Campbell.

Student Executive Board is a liason between the students of North Central and the administration. It is a place where a student can bring a concern they have and have it addressed by the board. "It was good to see the board try and work together to get positive changes on campus," Campbell said.

One break down of SEB is Organizations Board. This board is made up of representatives from each organization. They meet weekly to propose and discuss activities each group is considering. It is the job of board members to vote on the proposed activities and give their approval. Representatives then keep their organizations informed about the upcoming events. Organizations board prevents groups from scheduling too many events on any one day or being repeated too soon. As SEB vice-president and organizations board governor said, "I wanted us to work as a team and so we did team building exercises in order to be more effective as a team."

Freshman Class Board is an elected board chosen through a true election process compared to a representative from each NCC 101 class as done previously. This open campaign and election process gave each freshman a chance to experience running for an office. Once elected, they meet weekly and planned their activities. These included stress relievers during Grand Silence of each term and conducting a survey to see what kind of activities the freshman particularly would like to see on campus.

SEB, Org Board, and FCB gave students who were interested in the chance to lead their fellow students the opportunity to actively do so. As Campbell said, "I wanted student government to do things every student could see."

Expectations

Business

"The most challenging thing about being a RA is dealing with different kinds of personalities and people thrown together in one wing," said Rall RA Lori Batchelder. "And always being seen as the 'bad guy' even when you aren't."

The resident assistants and hall directors work throughout the year to make the adjustment to the halls manageable. They not only plan programs to entertain and educate, but also enforce the school policies.

"Sometimes it's hard living up to the expectations set for the RAs, but I wouldn't trade my experience," said Rall RA, Candi Harlan.

Fun Activities, Serious Conferences

Focusing On Diversity

The campus community has seen a lot more of the Resident Hall Association (RHA), The group is made up of four basic commities; campus concerns, Kaufman, campus activities, and he newest, campus safety.

President Stephanie Vanlangevelde feels that the group has more focus in their efforts to bring concerns to the attention of the administration. RHA's role is increasing as a liason between students and college departments. The new campus safety committee, headed by sophomore Terry Companik, was created because of the student's desire to know about incidents occuring on campus and about their prevention. Companik stated, "RHA felt that having a new director of campus Safety (Julie Kabat) that now would be a good time to establish a needed link between the students and administration concerning safety here on campus."

First year advisor, Ben Bramwell believes it is a year of growth for the organization. Previously good things were being built on.

RHA organized a Jail and Bail to raise money for the trip to the Illinois Residence Association convention in January. Students and faculty could pay to have someone arrested and in jail for any length of time from half and hour to two and a half hours. The money helped 21 members travel to Augustana for the convention. Senior Mary Caulfield said, "It was a great opportunity for all of us to learn about new ways to bring diversity to campus."

Many students received final exam packs from parents for which RHA was responsible for sales and distribution. Money raised helped fund the White House/Seybert Haunted House and other various Halloween activities.

RHA also helped prioritize a list of needs and wants from each hall regaurding repairs and renovations. Some of the requests were honored over interim.

Campus concerns committee worked on 24 hour visitation and an intra-college telephone service.

Multitude Of Activities

Entertaining, Fun

One of the busiest organizations on campus, College Union Activities Board planned continuously to provide new and improved events. Aside from the traditional events, there was increased effort to bring more entertainment to the campus. Such activities included comedian Chris Titus, the band JD Kurrant, human bowling, newlywed game and trips to a Bulls and Cubs game. "We had a lot of great team work to get these events scheduled. Our executive board worked awesome together," stated Julie Salisbury.

As for the traditional events, homecoming saw Olympic day, fun flicks, a street dance and the dance held at the Wyndham Hamilton in Itasca. The theme was "Catch the Spirit." and Steve Becker and Cathe Clarida were crowned King and Queen.

Winter term brought the "Winter Meltdown" dance held at the Radisson Inn in Lisle on February 12th. Despite the lack of electricity on campus, students at the dance had good time.

The spring formal was to be known as the "Spring Fling Wing Ding." It was held at the Country Lakes Country Club in Naperville on May 1st. Couples could enjoy a dinner of salad, chicken, and baked potato while listening to live piano music. The dance was held immediately following. "This was the easiest Spring formal I have ever planned," said Danielle Baadte. "Everything just fell into place."

Family weekend was May 8th and 9th. Activities available included a Cubs game, an open house at the President's, comedian David Rudolf, and fake classes.

"Overall, it's been an impressive year; a lot of activities and fun," said Nikki Zimmerman. "Next year will be even better."

Alcohol Awareness

Activities Are Alternatives

What is BACCHUS? The concept of BACCHUS is to educate students of the dangers of alcoholism and drinking and driving. It is no coincidence that BACCHUS stands for Boosting Alcohol Consciousness Concerning the Health of University Students. Ironically, it is also the name of the greek god of wine. Throughout the year, BACCHUS came up with several inventive ways to boost alcohol awareness on campus.

During Alcohol Awareness Week, October 12-16, the group hosted a non-alcoholic caps tournament. There was a pretty good turn out. Chris Koch participated and had a good time. He said, "Caps with no beer, what are you crazy!? Well, at least it didn't suck." There was also a field sobriety test demonstration and a variety of guest speakers. Participating in the field sobriety tests were Nikki Siciliano, Aaron Babcock, and Robyn Bendeich. "It's possible to fail the test perfectly sober," said Bendeich. "The only way he could tell I wasn't intoxicated was by my eyes."

An open gym on Monday, March 8 began Safe Spring Break Week. Tuesday, the "Eddie Talks" series was shown and followed by a candlelight vigil in Koten Chapel. Mocktails were served on Wednesday in Klub Kaufman and Mystery Science Theater 3000 was viewed on Thursday. Wrapping up the week of activities was the "not so ususal" lip-sync contest. The twist came when the participants didn't know what song to mimic until the music began. "BACCHUS" Milli Vanilli Lip-Sync contest has become a tradition. It's a great way to relieve stress at the end of a long winter term," said coordinator and participant Justin Brand.

The last major project was the hosting of the Regional Conference on April 3 and 4.

The 1992-93 officers were Lee Ann Oestrich (President), Nikki Sixiliano (Vice-President), Dawn Ristau (Secretary), and Tami Maske (Treasurer). A new experimental position was created to help improve public relations and viewing of educational material. This position was filled by Robyn Bendeich.

Supporting Their Views, Taking Sides

Real Life Politics

The presidental election may have been the most noted political happening of the year, but three organizations on campus found and discussed many more that had equal concern.

POLIS is an organization of students interested in political science, but not necessarily majors. Jason Gross, member, described it as "an organization that deals with political and social aspects of campus, the nation and the world." Throughout the year, the group held table talks in which one issue is presented. A panel of members then has the opportunity to ask questions and lead a discussion in the presence of a guest speaker. Talks this year included Yugoslavia, multiculturalism, racism, and the experiences of students that attended Washington University.

Mock Trial is taken as a class under leadership of professor Tom Sweeny. In class, they prepare a court simulation for competition. For the first time in the group's history, the team brought home a trophy and qualified a team to the gold flight and one to the silver flight of national competition. There were also a variety of individual awards at regional competition: Jackie Mari and Melanie Golumbeck, outstanding witnesses; Fred Korb, outstanding attorney.

Also competing in a real world simulation was the Model United Nations team. Representing Morocco, the team started their research the previous summer. They even traveled to the United Nations in New York in January where they talked with delegates from Morocco and Algeria about the issues they were researching. At the Midwest Model United Nations Conference, North Central was one of five schools to receive awards out of 72. Individual awards included: Dino Mirmingos and Lou Marasovic, best delegation for social and humanitarian committee; and Kelle Kieschnick, honorable mention for special political committee.

Different Types Of Media Say The Same Thing

Express Yourself

The Spectrum, The Chronicle, The Cardinal and Cardinal Video not only provide students with something to do in their spare time, but also inform the campus of events happening in the present, give us a place to react and share our opinions, allow us to look at ourselves objectively, and provide us with a book to remember the year by.

With a bigger staff and new computer, The Spectrum began compiling the year's memorable events as soon as school started and continued to do so long after the year was over. Improvements were seen through the use of more graphics and overall improvement in the design of the book. "I was glad to see better copy and graphics. They make a higher quality book," said editor-in-chief Becca Paigen. Through working on the yearbook, students are able to express their creativity while getting the satisfaction of putting an entire book together. They get a feel for the responsibilities and duties of layout design, copy writing, editing, and picture taking for five deadlines. Paigen added, "The staff did a great job, especially after I learned to delegate."

NCC's newspaper, The Chronicle, is published every other week. "We see ourselves as the eyes and ears of the campus as any other newspaper would be," said news editor Susan Clark. While reporting on events affecting the lives of NCC students, the staff gains experience in journalistic writing as well as developing leadership skills through taking on responsibility. Clark described the staff as small, but dedicated, working well under the pressure of deadlines. The Chronicle provides a non-threatening way to learn the art of putting together a newspaper, giving students experience in advertising and the use of printers while keeping the campus informed.

The Cardinal put out two issues of its literary magazine this year and held poetry readings both on campus and at Cafe Trieste in downtown Naperville. The Cardinal accepts submissions of short story, poetry, essays and artwork from both students and faculty and compiles them into one magazine representing an array of viewpoints. "We are a diverse group who enjoys writing and learning to interact with all our different personalities," said Gretchen Klee.

In its second year of existence, Cardinal Video has doubled in size and acquired a new media computer and microphone. Students involved in Cardinal Video exercise their creativity while providing the service of videotaping campus events for a small fee. For every hour of work they put in, they earn points. After accumulating enough points, they are able to check out video equipment for projects of their own. "Cardinal Video gives me an opportunity to gain experience in the video world while working with equipment I've never had the chance to work with before," said member Brandy Valentine.

Through videotape and ink, these groups are outlets for creativity, letting students experience a new dimension in expressing themselves.

Choices About Environment, Career

Two campus groups that were in full swing this year were NCC Green and the Pre-Health Organization. NCC Green is the environmental organization formed last year. The members of this group strive to educate the public about what can be done to help the environment, and to personally do what they can as a group to make our planet more environmentally safe. This year they had several big projects to fulfill these goals. One of these projects was a campus wide recycling program which resulted in the placement of glass, plastic, and paper recycling bins in each residence hall. They also went on a trip to help clean up the trash left in area parks and conducted water quality analysis tests in participation with the forest preserve. "One of the most important things about the club is actually getting down and doing things to make a difference. Our clean-up projects are a fun way of working to do that," said Susan Clark, co-president. In addition, NCC Green planned a big celebration for Earth Day in April. The year wasn't made up of all work though. The members went on two camping trips for a little fun. "The trip to Devil's Lake was a great chance for those who went both to have fun and continue learning while we were out there," commented Brian Hamilton, co-president.

Pre-Health was very busy as well. They were involved in many projects throughout the year, both fun and educational events. Activities included a Halloween haunted house co-sponsored with the theatre department and a blood drive held on March 1. Member Jodi Clemens said, "The haunted house was fascinating because of all the biological aspects and also good because it brought faculty and students together."

In addition, Pre-Health had a guest speaker on campus each term to talk to the members about different health related subjects. These seminars were meant to help educate members about different opportunities in health related fields. During fall term the speaker was the director of admissions for the Chicago College of Osteopathic Medicine. Spring term brought a pathologist to campus. The group ended the year with their AIDS conference. Five guests were invited to speak, including doctors and patients.

Both of these groups spent the year working on projects to both educate and motivate the campus community and their efforts turned out to be very successful.

What A Way To Celebrate 25 Years

On The Air, Off The Air, On . . .

WONC, the campus radio station, celebrated 25 years of broadcasting in May. One of the biggest student organizations on campus, WONC continues to expand and excell. However, this wasn't a year without ups and downs.

On Thanksgiving morning, the transmitter blew after an unexpected power surge. As a result, the station was off the air for three weeks. According to Jim Godo, station manager, the surge of power put extra stress on the 25 year old transmitter, which caused further complications and delays during interim. To reduce stress on the system, WONC broadcasted 24 hours a day temporarily until the station went out again early in February. The transmitter problems were solved in late February when the FCC granted permission to obtain a new transmitter and a single-bay polarized-antenna.

When on the air, WONC continued to update and expand its sports coverage to include high school games and mens' and womens' basketball conference away games.

Improvements were reflected when the station received three prestigious Marconi awards in College News, Sports, and Promotion. The Marconi awards are one of the highest ranked national awards available in broadcasting. "Aware of the fact that competition was stiff, and assuming the judges would want to spread the wealth around, I had prepared myself for either winning one award or none at all," said John Madormo, general manager.

Because WONC is an all live station, with the exception of prerecorded Sunday programs, there are many opportunities for students to get involved both on the air and behind the scenes. A student run station allows students to gain practical hands-on experience before entering the related job market. Godo stated, "It's an excellent training lab for those wanting the extra edge."

Unity Through Fellowship

Exploring Spiritual Beliefs

Recognizing spiritual beliefs as an important facet of student life, groups like Fellowship of Christian Athletes, United Methodist Student Organization, and the Chaplain Advisory Board provide an outlet in which NCC students can further explore their beliefs and relate them to everyday experiences.

Fellowship of Christian Athletes (FCA) is an international, interdenominational club that intertwines fun and faith in weekly meetings. "Since Jesus Christ is the most exciting person the world has ever known, my goal is to make FCA the same," says Eric Grevin, president, and the group is driven to accomplish this goal. Its meetings have become more upbeat through religious skits, games, discussions, and guest speakers. This year has also seen the addition of "Praise with Paul"-a pre-meeting get together at which students sing songs accompanied by Paul Zak on guitar. FCA started a volleyball team and in addition, hold both men's and women's Bible study groups. FCA does not only work with students and their needs though. They sponsor a child on a Indian Reservation in Texas. What's the philosophy behind FCA? Grevin explains it as "to have fun and to illustrate God's points."

In this same tradition of caring about students' spiritual needs, the United Methodist Student Organization (UMSO) offers meetings with a feeling of family behind them. These meetings consist of devotions, games, and students sharing various thoughts about faith and everyday life. The organization welcomes people of all denominations and it's goal is to have members understand their lives and faith better. UMSO's goals for this year have been to promote a family-type feeling among its members and to help memebers become more "in-tuned" with their faith. The theme this year was "Build Faith" and as vice-president Jason Gross explains, "UMSO built faith in more than just it's work projects, it built up faith in the students themselves."

Helping people explore their faith and become more open to ideas were just two of the goals held by the Chaplain Advisory Board (CAB). Keeping these goals in mind, the board made decisions concerning trips, events and spiritual issues surrounding campus ministry. Trips sponsored by CAB, such as the one to Palestine, provided a "well-rounded education" in that the trips teach the students about themselves and the issues taking place in the world. Students get a chance to meet and talk directly with the people whose lives are affected most by these issues and bring home their knowledge to work on solutions. "CAB has gone through some difficult times and grown spiritually because of them," says member Jason Gross. "It is a board not only for people with spiritual needs, but also it's for people who have a hunger for knowledge."

By combining fun and faith, these groups provide a place for students to discuss their beliefs and the strength to cope with issues that challenge those beliefs.

Providing Support

Exploring Cultures

Multi-Cultural Student Association (MSA), International Club, and Cardinals on Wheels (COW) are each an organization that allows a group of students to come together and share ideas and cultures.

MSA's goal is to "create a voice and outlet for students to explore their cultures and learn about others," said Mike Wamble, president. MSA accomplished this goal in a variety of ways. Fall term they sponsored a Halloween Mascarade Party. Winter term brought the Gospel Extravaganza, a play, "A Star Ain't Nothin But A Hole In Heaven" directed by Tamara Barber, and Reflections. There was also the annual banquet and fashion show. Wamble stated, "The banquet gave us direction in moving forward in letting us know where we are from. It was a good time together as a community, a family." Spring term saw a picnic and bowling.

International Club is designed for students to explore other cultures as well. In fall term, they traveled to Chicago in order to introduce the international students to the City and point out places of interest. They also sponsored a forum at which speakers addressed a variety of cultures. President Stacy Huser said, "The forum was a really good event for people to get a taste of different ideas and different cultures." They traveled to a variety of ethnic restaurants and sponsored an International New Year's celebration winter term.

COW is an organization for commuters to find out about the happenings of campus as well as plan their own events. Such events included finding the ultimate stud and studdette on campus in their rendition of the television show "STUDS". They also sponsored candlelight bowling which featured crazy bowling. Spring term they sponsored a trip to Great America. Tickets sold for $14.

Learning About Life

Beyond The Classroom

SIFE stands for Students in Free Enterprise and is a group of students who come together to teach themselves and others about the opportunities available to everyone today. They strive to educate through many activities involving people from campus and the surrounding communities. Some projects include the functional literacy program to help economically disadvantaged students from the Johnson school in Chicago and their work to create a badge for Brownie troops in Naperville.

The College Scholars are a group of students who apply to the program and are accepted by a committee of faculty and students based on their academic abilities. The group was formed to intellectually challenge those students capable of superior work. This is accomplished through interdisciplinary study, individualized research and other projects. Based on the amount of honors work completed, students may receive various kinds of recognition for their work upon graduation.

Backstage is a group of students interested in the fine arts. The majority of these students are interested in the theatre, but the organization is not closed to just those. The group strives to promote the fine arts both on campus and in the community. On campus, they help with props and scenery for the productions. The officers are Dave Daugherty (President), J.D. Fay (Vice-President), Anna Wanderer (Secretary), and Emily Kenaga (Organizations Board representative).

The student affiliation of the American Chemical Society is composed of students interested in science. Some are chemistry majors and minors, but that is not a requirement. The group provides several activities including chemistry related speakers and field trips and the annual Cranberry Tea. Co-Presidents are Jennifer Hepker and Debbie Parkins.

The math club is a group of students who take math beyond the normal academic level reached in the classroom. They do this through contests, submitting puzzles to the Chronicle and planning discussions and social programs. Co-presidents are David Zimmerman and Bryan Dwyer.

What's My Line?

The Fine Arts Department consists of three branches; music, drama, and art. Each has a distinct role on campus.

Musically, there are both instrumental and vocal talents. The pep band entertained at home basketball and football games while the jazz and concert bands held concerts once a term. Vocal music offered two choices. A student could perform with the concert choir or NCC Express, the show choir. Both held concerts at the end of each term. Concert choir toured the midwest as well.

Dramatically, there were two plays and one musical put on by the theatre department. Fall term saw "The Servant Of Two Masters" by Carlo Goldini. It was a play about a servant named Trufaldino that takes on two masters without either one knowing about the other. Winter term, Pfeiffer Hall was filled with the sound of tap shoes and voices for the production of Cole Porter's "Anything Goes." Spring term brought "Lysistrata" by Aristophanes; a play about a war between Athens and Sparta; a play about a battle between men and women.

Spring also brought the annual Spring Arts Fest put on by the Language department. Students and faculty could experience a variety of arts from music to painting and poetry readings to crafts.

Whether playing an instrument, singing a solo, or memorizing a script, students were bound to ask at one point in time, "WHAT'S MY LINE?"

Expansion in numbers

And talent

It has been "a year of growth and transition" for the North Central College concert band, jazz ensemble and Pep band, according to director/advisor Wally Koch. This year has seen a growth in both number and quality in all the ensembles. Concert band had thirty members, jazz and fifteen, and pep band twenty.

NCC students and faculty have also had more opportunities to hear the ensembles this year. Besides the concerts in Pfeiffer each term, they performed at the Earth Day celebration in April, the Arts and Languages Spring Arts Festival in May, and the concert band performed at commencement. Koch estimates that this was the first time in about twenty years that the concert band has played at commencement.

Koch expects continued growth in future years, not only in numbers of members, but also in the music department as a whole. This year has seen the addition of guitar lessons. Next year will bring a full-time band conductor, providing for another year full of growth and transition. Koch stated that he has seen the band grow from "a beginning band to become a more seasoned band," something we all can look forward to seeing more of in coming years.

Making themselves known in community, beyond

Singing and dancing talent

The goals of Director Jedarno "Pete" Martinez for this year's concert band choir were very basic: to make the choir better (as always) while expanding opportunities for performance.

The choir itself was the biggest it's ever been and there was a record number of members taking voice lessons, improving the sound of not only their voices, but the sound of the choir as a whole. The size of the choir made traveling a bit tricky, but with the help of active student officers, a four day tour of Wisconsin was made possible. Leaving the first Wednesday of Spring term and returning the following Saturday, the choir held performances at high schools and churches in Racine, Milwaukee, West Bend, and Neenah. The members stayed with families in the area. Director Martinez estimates that this has been the first tour since the 50's or 60's.

The choir also performed at local churches in Naperville and Lombard in addition to a concert every term in Pfeiffer. During Winter term, the choir participated in the Intercollegiate Choral Festival at Bradley University along with seven other area colleges and universities.

Martinez said, "It's been a great year. I've been very happy with the way the choir sounded." He looks forward to a more involved tour next year, as well as the performance of more demanding music.

The North Central Express exploded on the scene this year with new, flashier show choir outfits, as well as twenty-four members as opposed to last year's sixteen. Under the direction of Dwight Jordan, the choir entertained many with their dancing and performance of popular music. Mr. Jordan, who is the choreographer for the shows at Great America and Opryland, as well as the founder of "Show Choir Camps of America," joined NCC's staff for the first time this year and has had a great impact upon the show choir.

In addition to local performances and those in Pfeiffer, the North Central Express toured Wisconsin with the concert choir, providing entertainment during the receptions which followed the choral performances and delighting high school audiences.

Martinez, director of show choir last year, expects that the North Central Express will become even more visible both on campus and in the surrounding community in ensuing years, as well as being a very positive form of PR for North Central College.

Season Opener A Success

Serves Up Laughs

North Central's theatrical season got off to a great start with the production of Carlos Goldoni's "The Servant of Two Masters," which ran on November 6, 7, 13, and 14 in Pfeiffer Hall. This is a comedy of errors set in Venice in the 1920's. It follows the hilarious misadventures of a servant named Truffaldino, who tries to serve two masters simultaneously, without either one knowing. Truffaldino is played by Gus Rich. "His antics really livened up the play and audience," said Dora Rodriguez.

Truffaldino just happens to pick two masters who were already involved in a plot of misunderstanding, money, and of course, love. His first master is a woman named Beatrice Rasponi who comes to Venice dressed as her brother Frederigo. Frederigo was to marry Clarice, daughter of Pantalone, a business man. However, Frederigo was killed by Beatrice's lover, Florindo Aretusi, who then fled to Venice. So Beatrice has come to Venice in order to look for Florindo and collect the dowry that Pantalone owed her brother. The second master of Truffaldino is Florindo Aretusi, who just happens to be staying in the same inn as Beatrice.

Throughout the play Silvio Lombardi, who is engaged to Clarice, continuously pops up trying to strike up a duel with whoever is around. Another main character is Smeraldina, Clarice's maid. She ends up falling in love with Truffaldino. Smeraldina is played by Michelle Burr, who said of her experience, "As a freshman, I was happy to get a part, and everybody was incredible to work with!"

Love, Justice Prevail

"Anything Goes"

In one of the biggest productions done by director Jeordano Martinez, Cole Porter's "Anything Goes" provided plenty of laughs and lots of dancing entertainment. This musical, set in the 1930's mixes romance and adventure into a lively comedy. Famous singer Reno Sweeny (Heather Gribbins) boards the S.S. American with her "Angels" Chastity, Purity, Virtue, and Charity and discovers her love for Sir Evelyn Oakleigh (Keith Carlson), who is unfortunately engaged to Hope Harcourt (Julie Strassburger). This engagement however, doesn't last as Hope finds her lost love Billy Crocker (Jeff Gum). Meanwhile, Public enemy #13, Moonface Martin (Rob Tobin) poses as the Reverend Moon and Bishop Dobson (Scott Wilkins) is mistaken as Moonface and is arrested. Billy gets caught in the middle of all this by dating Hope, and posing as public enemy number one in order to avoid his boss, Elisha J. Whitney (Karl Kelly).

In response to his favorite part of the musical, Martinez said, "I particularly enjoyed the music because of the big tap dance numbers!" Martinez also stated that this was one of his most successful musicals as the last night of the performance was sold out.

Kate Petters, member of the audience, said of the performance, "I was very impressed with the musical as a whole. The actors were very talented."

Including everyone who contributed to the success of "Anything Goes", there were about 100 people who were involved. Some key people include Chris Connelly (Acting Coach), Jack Phend (Scenic Design), Julane Sullivan and Stephanie Dezell (Construction/Costume Design), Lori Roberts (Choreographer), David Daugherty (Lighting Design) and the Orchestra. Sound coordinator Marty Lick said, "Everything went smoothly and according to plan."

The hard work and creativity of all the cast and crew brought the musical alive and demonstrated just how much "Anything Goes."

Abstinence on part of women only half the battle

Make love, not war

All men are created equal. This statement turns to riddle when the men are women and the women are men. This is the situation in the spring production of "Lysistrata."

All but two of the parts in the play are cross-cast, meaning that the men are playing women and vice versa. According to both cast members and director, Chris Connelly, the characters are not true to life, but rather extremes of both sexes. Each actor plays the stereotype of the opposite sex.

The cross-casting of the gender roles gives the story part of its depth. "Things are very different when a man is played by a woman and a woman played by a man," says Connelly. "With the whole issue of sexual harassment — men have never been subjected to it," he continues.

In agreement with Connelly, Keith Carlson, cast member, says the cross-casting is one of the strong points of the play. "It is a great opportunity for each gender to see how their gender sees the other," said Carlson.

The classic comedy about how the women of Greece went on a "sex strike" to stop the war with Sparta was written by Aristophanes in the fourth century. According to Connelly, the play takes place during that time in Athens, Greece, "or maybe the present, almost anywhere."

Although many may think it would be difficult to relate to anything coming from the fourth century, or Athens, for that matter, Connelly stresses how the play is still appropriate because it is "also about us and how some things haven't changed. How war is still with us and sexual stereotypes are still with us."

Addressing the other theme running throughout the play, Lori Hendrickson, cast member, said, "As interesting as the gender issue is, it's really important to remember that this play advocates peace." Connelly said that it is "definitely an anti-war theme.

Besides the different theme and the cross-dressing, the play is different than most others at NCC in another aspect. The cast was made up of 32 actors and actresses. Traditionally, productions have consisted of 10 to 20 members.

Overall, the play contains a serious message about needless and costly wars which is dealt with in a very comical manner. Charles Beecher said, "The reality of the show is kind of hard to see, but once you get past the gender issue, it is very powerful."

"Two of the hardest things to do are to see ourselves as others see us and to laugh at ourselves. This production hopes to make us see clearer and laugh fuller," said Connelly.

Beautiful weather makes day enjoyable

Talent flourishes

"It was definitely worth skipping Class." That was Jennifer Mikale's summary of the 6th annual Arts and Letter's Spring Arts Festival held on Thursday, May 13, on the Old Main lawn.

There was never a dull moment thanks to coordinators Beverly Cook and Nancy Kirby. People were scattered on the lawn enjoying various music and drama groups that performed, while others sampled food and made their own creations.

Whether it was French, German, or English, there was drama to watch. Chad Lange and Griffin Kisner delivered an entertaining portion of their forensics piece, Arthur Kotit's "The End of the World." Powdered wigs, black robes, and pitchforks filled the stage as the French club presented their version of A Bougesis Gentleman.

Ever wondered what would happen if the story of Sleeping Beauty was updated? That was the basic story line of the German club's Fractured Fairy Tale: Dornroschen.

Other cultural events were the eloquent French folk dancing and the Spanish group's rousing performance of "La Bamba" and other favorite Latin songs. The fluid, striking Latin dances, including both Salsa and Merengue, performed by Rocio Perez, friends, and students, drew a crowd.

The Art department built its own maze for anyone daring enough to scramble on their knees through it and dodge blasts from squirt guns.

There were paints supplied for fingerpainters, and a table for making beaded bracelets and necklaces.

Barb Lyon and Carol Schnedorf created "edible art" and then let the hungry spectators devour their masterpieces. Other tasty delicacies that were sold included French crepes, fresh German brownies, shortbread, and Kool-aid. PFM provided other picnic food and drinks.

The Writing Center had a challenging photo ID quiz of well-known authors and another matching the authors with their handwriting.

International Club students had their Naperspective publication for sale. The magazine includes articles on education, cultural and other adjustments, cartoons, and many other interesting topics.

Other creative writers on campus, including Janet Bernhardy, Kory Schaff, Gretchen Klee, and professor John Jacob, read some of their own works.

WONC broadcasted from the lawn and provided music.

The day finished with NCC Express's lively routines to "Bohemian Rhapsody" and "We Go Together."

Award Winners At Last

Speaking Out

After lots of hard work, long practices, and countless competitions, NCC's forensics team finished it's year ranked a among the top twenty schools in the nation. According to Dr. Richard Paine, communications professor and head coach, this has been the team's second most successful year in the history of North Central, having won nine team sweepstakes awards and 132 individual awards. They also qualified 55 entries for national competition, a record statistic in itself. Two members of the team made it through elimination rounds to the quarterfinal rounds at national competitions, held at Bloomsberg University in Bloomsberg, Pennsylvania. They were John Keaton and Joy Rauch.

These accomplishments have made Dr. Paine optimistic about next year. As always, his goals for everyone on the forensics team is to build up self-confidence and maturity, while at the same time, developing a variety of life skills. These include coping with stress and understand and responding appropriately to subjective decisions. He looks forward to the returning talent and the new talent coming next year. Dr. Paine said, "It's a year I'm genuinely proud of and a year that makes me anticipate an even higher level of performance next year and continued forward progress."

What's The Score?

Many changes were found in the athletic department, but they may not have been noticed upon a first look. One change under our noses was the new tartan floor of Merner Fieldhouse. A second change was perhaps overlooked. The cardinal emblem was redesigned to appear more modern. Sleek breaks interrupted the once solid figure. Third, the mascot was dressed in a new costume late winter term. It's modern, better-fitting, and cooler.

Perhaps these subtle changes contributed to the success of the teams throughout the year.

Fall sports action was highlighted by the mens' cross country team taking first place at Nationals; women claimed both state and conference championships. Football and soccer did not have champion seasons, but worked hard to improve none-the-less. Each named new coaches to the roster for the upcoming seasons. William Mack and Franz Matheiu join respectively.

Winter action included the wrestlers pinning down a second place finish in conference; sending Sean Eggenberger and Don Mueller to Nationals. The swim teams both placed fifth in conference. Volleyball finished as conference champs. Men's and womens' basketball ended the season 5-17 and 4-20. Spring saw sports action just as intense. Baseball started their season 10-0 in the Bahamas. Both indoor and outdoor track teams were successful as well. Each qualified individuals for nationals and took honors as a team.

Whatever sport was on the court or field, on any given day of any given season, participants, coaches and spectators alike wanted to know, "WHAT'S THE SCORE?"

"Let's Go Cards!"

School Spirit

The combined effort of the cheerleaders and the pom-pons made the talent show a wonderful event. The talent show was held in the beginning of the school year. A dance routine made up of both cheerleaders and poms has never before happened in school history.

In the midst of adverse weather during football season, and the fluctuations of score during basketball season, our cheerleaders and poms boasted school spirit and enthusiasm.

"Let's go cards!" Our games would not have been as lively and enthusiastic as they were without the cheers and encouragement of the cheerleading squad. The squad consisted of returning members Mary Kay Keller (Captain), Erika Hardin, Candy Piwonka, Carmen Taylor, Desiree Thigpen, and freshmen Maricel Romero, Cindy Ruesch, and Amy Wolff. Football season started with fun as the team was transported to the first game against Caroll College in Wisconsin. Upon the arrival of basketball season, four members of the squad welcomed Laurie Wright as a fifth cheerleader. The cheerleaders are looking forward to cheerleading camp and competition to be held in August.

The pom-pon squad consists of twelve girls in football season and eight in basketball. The squad was lead by Captains Katie Portenlanger and Kara Edelmann. Five members of the squad will be graduating; Portenlanger, Amanda Ellingwood, Carrie Krause, Michelle Monpetit and Kerri Benniger. Other squad members include Heather Cordon, Jennifer Fitch, Diana Tomasko, and freshmen Tricia Karnuth, Janelle VanHootegem and Lisa Vodopivec. Fundraising was done by carnation sales for Sweetest Day as well as Valentines Day. They practice seven hours a week if not more in preparation for the games and the pom-pon and dance competition in March.

Connor Resigns
Record Broken
Impressive End

Touchdown

The 1992 football season saw the end of an era and the beginning of a new one. Head Coach Paul Connor resigned after eight seasons at the helm and his career record was 28-42-2. In January, North Central concluded a nationwide search by naming Bill Mack as its new head coach. Mack spent 20 seasons as head coach at Crystal Lake Central and most recently as offensive coordinator at Wheaton College.

North Central suffered through a barrage of injuries that changed the complexion of the squad almost daily and ended with a record of 1-7-1. The Cardinals closed the gap on some of the contenders, including losing only 35-20 to conference champion Illinois Wesleyan University, but failed to win until the final game of the year.

The highlight of the season came in North Centrals' 51-14 victory over Carthage College. Sophomore Shane Ellison broke the schools single-game rushing record by running for 215 yards on 33 carries and four touchdowns. North Central totaled 444 yards rushing for the game.

North Central had a strong showing against Augustana. They trailed only 7-0 at the half and lost 21-0. David Reed rushed for 94 yards, Alex Serrano led the team with 16 tackles.

The Cardinals lost a heartbreaker the next week at Elmhurst. The Bluejays scored a late touchdown to defeat NCC 30-28. North Central had gone ahead on Jason Reid's touchdown catch. Kevin Platt scored two runs and Chriss Ferretti caught a 40 yard touchdown pass from Bob Murray.

North Central led Millikin in the second quarter 14-7 on Reed and Murray's runs, but the Big Blue scored 21 unanswered points to take a 28-14 lead and won 35-21.

The game against North Park was North Central's to win or lose. North Central led 20-6 after three quarters, but the Vikings scored two late touchdowns to force a tie. Pat Oehlschlager scored on a touchdown pass and run.

There were many more highlights beside the Ellison record in the last ballgame. The Cardinals burst in front 33-0 at the half. North Central got touchdowns from Ellison, Justin Royer, Oehlschlager, and Steve Reents.

For the season, Reed rushed for 600 yards, Oehlschlager 412, Ellison 322, Royer 274 and Murray 237. Murray passed for 601 yards and Ferretti caught 15 passes.

A highlight for the team was winning the Aurora University Invitational Tournament, which involved eight area squads. Overall, the team placed sixth at conference. Seitz won second place at the CCIW conference tournament at No. 1 singles.

The men's team had their share of success as well. With a season record of 5-8, the team finished seventh at the CCIW conference meet. Four individuals placed fifth in singles play; Doug Lange, Ryan Gardner, Tony Estil, and Keith McClellen.

Returning Players Injury Plagued Incoming Coach

Experience

The year looked strong with two of the school's all time leading scorers, George Pilja and Dave Bozarth, and seven starters returning, yet the soccer team had a rough season. It was plagued with injuries and was unable to meet its goal of a repeat conference championship.

The highlights of the season included winning the first Sal Vacarro tournament in memory of last year's assistant coach. Other memorable moments included beating Trinity and Kenny Shaw's favorite; "the day in practice when we tackled Coach K."

Chris Johnson felt "team camaraderie was great. We were a real unit." Brian Everding sees the need for some change next year. "Our attitude needs to change in order to win, we must be a team and play like a team."

Joe Stojaspal said, "maybe we had a pretty bad season, but I think we'll learn from our mistakes and have a great season next year. Especially with the joining of our new coach Franz Mathieu." Assistant Coach Mathieu has played as a fullback for the Chicago Sting.

Practice Practice Practice Conference Goal

Congratulations are in order for the volleyball team; they arrived three weeks prior to the start of school in order to shape up for an incredible season. These girls went through six hours of practice daily with one goal in mind: winning conference.

Throughout the season, they proved their dedication with two hours of practice per night. Their practicing paid off. The team ended the season with a record of 29-17 and they did win conference. Although they didn't make it to nationals, Kerry Sluis believed winning conference was the most memorable part of the season.

Sluis also felt that rewards were gained in way of friendships. She got a chance to meet new people and to get to know her teammates better.

Through hard work and dedication, the team earned its goal, proving that while there may not be much rest for the dedicated, there are many rewards.

Victory Over Augustana State Nationals

Amazing!

Many of us hate getting up for 8:00 classes, much less even thinking about going for a five mile morning run at 6:30 a.m. But if you are a member of the men's cross country team, this is the time when Coach Al Carius greets you with a "Good Morning, boys." The true runners are out there every morning, all year long and this is one of the best times for them.

Some memorable moments for the team this season included Derron Bishop's pep talk that Chris Piazzola described "like a big kick in the pants, and that really brought us together. I see that as our turning point, or more the starting point for our season." Some may also remember the smile Derron Bishop had on his face as he crossed the finish line at the conference meet against Augustana; first ranked North Central had led second ranked Augustana throughout the race. Another moment that most everyone will remember is the trip to Nationals that sent seven students ran in. Fourteen team members piled into a van for fourteen hours to cheer on their teammates in New York. The 107 point score took NCC out of the four year streak of second place finishes. Senior Derron Bishop finished sixth individually and junior Dan Mayer finished 12th.

The women's team has a lot to be proud of as well. The team captured their first conference and state championships, and a fourth place finish in regionals-the highest ever. Jessica Sarelas and Joy Sobczak qualified for nationals. Lisa Schauner felt that the most memorable moment was winning conference for the first time; "the freshmen wanted to give the seniors a season they would never forget."

Freshman Lynn Brady sets her own pace at a meet earlier in the season. Lynn also ran in the top seven, fulfilling one of her goals. (Photo by B. Paigen)

The women's team also surpassed their rivals, Augustana, at every meet they competed in together. The team's success fulfilled many of their goals of the season. Having fun and working together as a team to improve and capture state and conference championships were just a couple goals.

Freshman Lynn Brady is looking forward to next season already because "five of the top eight are returning. We are a strong young team building for the future."

Although the men's and women's basketball teams finished 9-17 and 4-20 respectively, that doesn't mean they were any less of a team. They practiced together, played together, and lent each other support.

Coach Kim Hansen said, "We have picked up our intensity and our level of play . . . We're a much better defensive ball club." However, offense was still a problem. "We need to improve our shot percentage, definately," said senior center Denise Kunert. Five seniors will be graduating, Kunert, Sarah Essington, Gayle Kirchdoefer, Heather Ogilvie, and Denise Bode.

The men saw action from their seniors; Steve Becker, Alonzo Boulrece, Tim Hughes, Derrick Malone and Alonzo Alexander. Becker went through the season with injuries, but Boulrece was the third-leading scorer and second-leading rebounder. Hughes missed part of the season due to injuries, but led in three point attempts and makes. Malone ended as leader in steals and Alexander was the fifth leading scorer in history. Alexander sums it up by stating, "It was a fun year . . . for the seniors going out, I wish them the best in life."

This year has proved to be a successful season. Both the men's and women's teams had winning seasons and gained many honors.

Coach Dennis Ryan was honored as The Illinois Swimming Association's 1992 Men's College Division Coach of the Year. Greg Sego (92) was named swimmer of the year.

Throughout the season, NCC set over 50 personal bests. For some, this may come as a surprise because the teams are made up of new faces. Combined, the teams had only one senior, Terry Hendron. However, they worked hard to get in shape. Freshman Jenny Kraynek said she "was worried about college swimming and making the change from high school because I've heard a lot of horror stories, but I love it now." The other newcomers also adapted and came together to build a team. Hendron stated, "Even though we had a young team, we came together well and had a lot of fun."

Weighing In Conference Nationals

Success

Many people diet sometime throughout their lives, but in the case of a wrestler, one must be dieting all season. For each meet, the wrestlers must make weight, meaning they cannot weigh above their weight class. Some only had to lose a few pounds, others close to 20.

But despite the weight watching, the wrestlers had an impressive season. Overall, their record was 11-5-1 with a second place finish in CCIW to Augustana. Heavy weight Karl Schmidt placed fourth in conference. Third place finishers were Perry Shaw, Walter Roell, and Derrick Martin. Second place finishers included Chris Tointon, Rob Flores, and Russ Randall. The team had two wrestlers place first and qualify for Nationals in Connecticut; Sean Eggenberger and Don Mueller.

Coach Jimm Miller summed up the season, "I'm really pleased with the way we wrestled. To get five wrestlers to the finals and advance two is good."

The indoor track season during winter term is a warm up for outdoor in the spring. That practice paid off for the men's team. Eighteen members qualified for national competition. There, several individuals claimed honors. Dan Mayer took first place in the 10,000 and 5000. Many other were named All Americans; Derron Bishop (5th-10,000 & 4th-5000), Andre Coleman (4th-400 & 2nd-200), Steve White (pole vault), David Jones (7th-triple jump), Rob Harvey (6th-1500). The 4x400 relay team of Dave Zimmerman, Ed Rhyne, Gale VanRossem, and Coleman claimed 6th place All-American honors. Brian Fennelly placed 10th in discus. Overall, the team placed 4th.

The women's team qualified two individuals for national competition. Deanne Reedquist was 8th place All American in the triple jump and Brandi Winski placed 12th in javelin.

The North Central baseball team ended their season with an overall record of 24-12-1. The cardinal men started the season on high note after returning from the Cocoa Beach Expo at 10-0. The next weeks would prove to be hard as the Cards went to a last place standing in conference. They lost two games against Carthage, and one against Wheaton. As Coach Tom Purcel said, "We've still got a shot . . . Florida was not a fluke. I still believe in this team."

The Carnials pulled out of their last place standing to place third in conference going into the championships. They played Augustana at Wheaton winning 13-12 in an extra inning. North Central then faced North park winning 15-5. Augustana lost to the Cards 7-5. The final game against Carthage was lost 12-5.

They gave the conference championship a run for its money and in the end did not quit. They did what they knew and finished second-they played ball.

Winning record Conference

Champs

The North Central Softball team won it's second conference title in the last five years under Coach Jim Kulawiak and finished with a CCIW mark of 12-2 and an overall record of 26-6 for the 1993 season. However, the impressive record was not enough to impress the NCAA tournament selection committee and the Cardinals were left out of the post-season.

Freshman pitcher, Brandy Valentine was the CCIW conference player of the year, the first time the award has been given to a freshman. Valentine lead the team with a .451 batting average. Senior Denise Bode batted .450 on the season and Diane Pirkle led the team in wins with nine.

Valentine, Bode, Pirkle, and sophomore Debra Jurgel were all-conference selections.

Putting Under the Weather

The golf team may have seemed a bit under the weather this season. They were forced to give up three meets to poor weather conditions. According to junior Bill Auble, this was the worst year to play weather wise. "We played in snow, rain, and band wind."

However, the season was still an enjoyable one. The team had a relaxed atmosphere that fostered fun, not pressure, so the members were able to get close. The team lost a few faces a gained a few new ones. The coaching reflected that. It was a year for building team unity and learning.

The minimum number of matches played was a let down, however. It didn't give the team a good start and enough matches under their belts to give them the experience they needed at conference. Golf isn't a sport that you can give a pep talk for, if you have a bad day, you just go out the next day and do your best.

At conference, the seventh place finish was only part of the fun. Ryan Rohy felt that the time spent hanging out with the team was just as important.

It's not varsity, but . . .

Fierce competition

"Intramurals is people playing sports competitively, but not at the varsity level," said Matt Luecke, member of intramural board.

Most students use intramural sports as a way to relax and have some fun, but none the less, an intense level of competition exists. "I like to think as a volleyball game as just a way to have fun with friends, but some of the teams we played against were out for blood," said Robyn Bendeich. but the competition was not limited to volleyball. It was just as intense in football, softball, and basketball.

New to the intramural program was sand volleyball. Participants had teams of at least four and played on Sunday afternoons of spring term. "Volleyball is our most popular sport and people asked if there was a way to continue it in the spring. The result-sand volleyball," stated Luecke.

Whatever sport played, for fun and relaxation or for the intense competition, each has his/her own reasons for wanting to play. AT any rate, it's exercise.

Freshman orientation proved to be nothing like college life for most of the participants, but yet they had fun.

Senior Nikki Siciliano hit the bulls-eye during her demonstration of the sobriety tests during BACCHUS' Alcohol Awareness Week.

Sarah Roessler, Julie Salisbury, Bill Wolfe, and date live it up at the winter dance despite the bad weather.

Question The Changes

"What's New?"

Change is inevitable. It happens daily, hourly, every second. But yet, some changes are better than others. Some are good while others have disasterous results.

Remembering the year in which everyone asked, "WHAT'S NEW?"

-North Central's Mens Cross country team placed first at Nationals.

-Football Head Coach, Paul Connor, resigned after eight years with a record of 28-42-2.

-Chicago Bears Head Coach, Mike Ditka, was released from his position.

-Bill Clinton, governor of Arkansas, was elected President of the United States.

-Carol Mosley Braun, democrat, was elected to the United States Senate. She is the first african-american woman to hold this position.

-Hurricane Andrew hit he east coast leaving a national disaster behind and millions in damage. Likewise, the "storm of the century" ravaged the entire east coast form Maine to Florida in March. Residents had to deal with high winds, tornados, and snow.

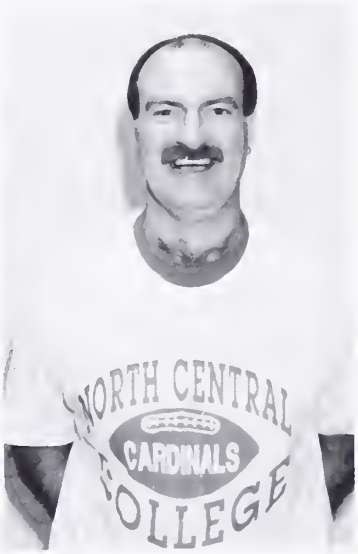
-The popular television sit-com CHEERS declared its eighth season its last.

-Two royal scandals in Great Britain; Princess Diana and Prince Charles separated from one another and Prince William and Fergie got a divorce.

Those were just a few of the changes, many more took place. With that in mind, everyone should keep up on events-social, national, and international. Things are always changing, bringing about the question, "WHAT'S NEW?"

-Becca Paigen

The cross country team ran to the top at nationals.



Paul Coonnor, football coach resigned after eight years at NCC.

Many Many Thanks

As editor-in-chief of the 1992-93 SPECTRUM, I would like to express my gratitude to all who aided in the production of this book. It took many hours of dedication and work, but not only by me; many others helped along the way. Many thanks go to:

My dedicated staff. I know the meetings were not held at the most convenient times, but each of you set out to accomplish a task and you succeeded.

Our advisor, Nancy Kirby. You truly let me be "the one in charge." thank you for your confidence in my decisions.

Our Jostens representative, Jim Bull. You always returned my numerous calls with answers to even the most obvious questions. I'll miss working with you next year.

Joel Erickson, Chronicle editor. You gave me a bigger office to completely trash and for that I will forever be grateful.

Tom Carlton in Public Relations. Without your records and pictures, our book would be incomplete.

All of my friends who I asked favors of: Robyn Bendeich, Terry Hendron, Jarrod Eason, Susan Clark and everyone else. Without your cooperation and willingness, there would be alot of blanks.

Special thanks to my boyfriend, Chris Tointon. You provided the much needed support and encouragement when I was ready to throw it all away. You listened to me complain about everything, but you also helped me celebrate when the deadlines were completed. I love you.

I've been editor for two years now and feel it is time to move on. To whoever takes my place, my sincere best wishes. Keep a smile and stay optimistic.

Sincerely

Becca Paigen
Editor-in-Chief
